Reapportionment Bill Dead.

The House finally refused by a decisive vote to take up the Sale-Holt reapportionment bill, and it lies dead upon the calendar, as is the eyster bill in the Senate. There is absolutely no hope of the passage of ether bill at this session. The House refused to pass the oil bill, providing for a certain standard of petroleum, and this bill, too, is among the things that were.

The passage by both branches of a joint resolution offered by Mr. Griffith, Republican, was another feature of the legislative day. The resolution is in reference to defalcations by former employes of the office of the auditor of public accounts. It authorizes and requests the attorney-general to proceed against the auditor and the sureties of defaulters, if in his opinion the State can recover anything. The resolution names three former auditors against whom the attorney-general is authorized to proceed on account of peculations by a clerk under their administrations.

great many of the bills not yet acted on are those proposing to amond the Code in the matter of legal procedure, or repeals bills, or local bills to which objection has been made.

One bill, involving a considerable sum of money, is hopelessly tied up on the calerdar. It is a Senate bill proposing to repeal a joint resolution transferring to the Mount Vernon Avenue Association a certain claim against the United States for money advanced for the building of the national Capitol) The sum involved amounts to $120,000, exclusive of interest, which, it allowed, would largely exceed that sum. The bill cannot be taken up now, and is therefore dead.

Another bill of interest to corporations was discussed last night, but the Senate refused of pass it, and a-motion to reconsider was made and passed by. This proposes to have corporations assessed on their actual capital, rather than on their maximum authorized capital.

In brief, it may be said that both houses have disposed of, either by passing or defeating, almost every important measure that has come before them. Of those remaining, not one may be said to be important or of more than local It has been a hard week, but been one productive of great

WORK OF THE HOUSE.

Important Measures Considered.

When the Senate resumed work at 8 o'clock there was barely a working quorum present. Under the rule adopted in the afternoon, the roll was called and cach senator was allowed to call up one bill, the measures being in each case local or private or uncontested.

Mr. Sale, in the absence of Mr. Camphell, called up the House bill extending the time of the assessment of the franchise tax on corporations until June 1, 1994. The real purpose of the bill is to provide for taxing corporations on their actual capital rather than on the maximum authorized capitalization.

Mr. Pilegar pointed out what he re-actual capital rather than on the maximum authorized capitalization.

Mr. Phiegar pointed out what he regarded as a danger in the operation of the bill. He did not however, desire to contest the measure.

Mr. Thomas, Mr. Wickham, Mr. Walker, Mr. Mann and others were-drawn into the informal discussion of the measure.

Mr. Wickham, in the course of his statement, took occasion to declare that the laws of the State had been made so hersh in their operation as to drive out rather than to invite capital. Prior to the new Constitution the laws of the State were so fair to capital that many companies were seeking charters in this State, rather than in New Jersey, and other States known for their friendliness to corporations. He contended that even offered by the former to further investi-colloquy between Messrs. Griffith (Republican), of Russell, and and Gunn (Democrat), of Norfolk city, over a resolution offered by the former to further investigate the affairs of the offices of State Auditor and Treasurer.

Soon after the body was called to order, the following resolution was offered by Mr. Griffith:

Whoreas, in the consideration before the House Committee for Courts of Justice, February 25th of a resolution instructing the Attorney-General of Virginia to Institute, legal proceedings against the present Auditor of Public Acts of the State of Virginia to Institute the Auditor of Public Acts of the State of Virginia to Institute the Auditor of Public Accounts of this State, to-wit: W. POLITICAL COLLOQUY.

Mr. Griffith advocated the resolution in a fiery speech, in which he made many grand-stand plays about the alloged sins of the officers of the iSate.

Mr. Gunn, interrupting the patron of the resolution, declared that the Political capital, and this invited a biting reply on the part of Mr. Griffith, who declared that he had understood that the Norfolk members had run for office on the ticket

HIGH SCHOOLS IN COUNTIES.

Mr. Thomas spoke at some length in advocacy of the bill, which he regarded as a great forward step. It was not a question of whether the individual is configuous to rich territory. It was a great effort in the direction of citizen building. He closed with a piec for the passage of the bill.

Mr. Mann of Nottoway, had charge of Afternoon Session.

The afternoon session was consumed largely in the discussion of everal contosted bills, one of chief interest being trait in relation to the establishment of a system of high schools in the counties and providing a plan therefor. This bill was offered at the same time in both houses and having passed the House with amendments, the House bill offered by Mr. Ould was taken up by the Senate. Pending discussion of the bill, the hour of 6 arrived and the chair was vacated until 8 P. M.

Life QUARDS.

The Life Guards are two regiments of cavalry forning part of the British household troops. They are gallant soldiers, and every loyal British heart is proud of them. Not only the King's household, but yours, ours, everybody's should have its life guards. The need of them is especially great when the greatest foes of life, diseases, find allies in the very elements, as colds, influenza, catarrh, the grip and pneumonia do in the stormy month of March. The best way we know of to guard against these diseases is to strengthen the system with Hood's Sarsaparilla—the greatest of all life guards, it removes the conditions in which these diseases make their most successful attack, gives vigor and tong to all the vital organs and functions, and imparts a gental warmth to the blood. Remember the weaker the system the greater the exposure to disease. Hood's Sarsaparilla makes the system syong.

"My friends noticed the rapid improve ment and were much surprised, for (as I have since learned) they thought my days were numbered.
